

GLOME Z vase

Design: CTRLZAK
Production: JCP Universe, 2018

*"You can warp yourself
Through hollow dimensions to Infinity's end"*

Haiku by Alistair Gentry

Mouth blown in the island of Murano, this unique glass piece is suspended in a simple metal wireframe base that completes the object in a balance of elementary forms and light.

Glome Z depicts Nebulas -the nurseries of stars of our Universe- and in this particular case the Pillars of Creation, an area of interstellar gas and dust in the Eagle Nebula, specifically the Serpens constellation, approximately 6,500-7,000 light years from Earth.

Materials: vase in mouth-blown Murano glass with casting black coloring and silver fragments. Metal base in glossy black finishing.

Dimensions (W x D x H): Ø 25cm x 25cm
